

Interview with Nicola MacLeod

0

December 01, 2009

Nicola MacLeod, 30, of Edinburgh, Scotland, is an army doctor and one of the world's top adventure racers. Indeed, in addition to winning the Wenger Patagonian Expedition Race in February, 2009, MacLeod's team, Helly Hansen—Prunesco, recently won the Adventure Race World Championship race in Portugal. The team, including MacLeod, Nick Gracie, Tom Gibbs and Warren Bates, pushed for six days in Portugal with little more than seven hours of total sleep.

Team Helly Hansen—Prunesco is now training and gearing up for the 2010 Patagonian Race. Like last year, MacLeod will race with Mark Humphrey, Bruce Duncan and Andy Wilson for the February event.

Nicola MacLeod in Patagonia

Race Updates

Stay tuned for article updates and photos from the 2010 race, where a Gear Junkie correspondent will report live from Tierra del Fuego.

Patagonian Photo Gallery

Take a spin through the 2009 Wenger Patagonian Expedition Race photo gallery.

Connect to the Wenger Patagonian Expedition Race

WPER Race SiteWPER TwitterWPER Facebook

Meet the YogaSlackers

GearJunkie.com has teamed with three members of the YogaSlackers adventure group for the Patagonian Race. yogaslackers.com.